Foodics — Run Your Restaurant Smarter

B2B LinkedIn campaign brief | Independent student proposal

Company overview

Foodics provides cloud-based point-of-sale and restaurant management solutions. Its official website describes tools covering orders, payments, inventory, kitchen coordination and business reporting. This proposal focuses on everyday operating needs rather than technical detail.

Campaign objective

Build awareness of Foodics among restaurant decision-makers in Saudi Arabia and encourage interested businesses to explore the company's solutions. This is a proposed campaign; no performance results are claimed.

Target audience

Restaurant and café owners, small and medium-sized food businesses, and restaurant managers in Saudi Arabia. The content is for business decision-makers who balance service, staff coordination and day-to-day oversight.

B2B buyer persona

"The hands-on operator" — an owner or manager of an independent restaurant or café. They are responsible for daily service and want a clearer way to keep orders, staff and business information organized. They value practical demonstrations and clear explanations before requesting a product conversation.

Campaign concept & key message

The campaign uses familiar restaurant work moments to show how management technology can support daily operations. Key message: Managing a restaurant can be simpler with the right technology. The tone is useful, calm and business-focused—not a promise of guaranteed savings or results.

Content strategy & schedule

Use a short LinkedIn sequence that moves from recognition of a challenge to a practical product explanation and a low-pressure next step. Each post carries one idea and uses consistent Foodics-inspired violet, grey and white. Publish weekly over four weeks as a suggested cadence; adjust based on the business calendar.

Week 1 — Campaign introduction: “Run Your Restaurant Smarter.” Set the campaign’s benefit-led theme.

Week 2 — Business challenges: “Too Many Tasks, Not Enough Time?” Recognize the busy mix of orders, sales and team coordination.

Week 3 — Product benefits: “Simplify Your Daily Operations.” Explain verified capabilities: order management, kitchen coordination, inventory management and real-time reporting.

Week 4 — Call to action: “Ready to Work Smarter?” Invite restaurant owners to explore Foodics through foodics.com.

Supporting assets: one three-point infographic that explains operational use cases, plus one LinkedIn digital advertisement with a direct exploration CTA.

Suggested KPIs

Track impressions and reach for awareness; engagement rate, reactions, comments and shares for audience response; link clicks and click-through rate for interest; and website visits or demo enquiries attributed to LinkedIn where tracking is available. Set targets only after a baseline or campaign budget is agreed. These are proposed measures, not results.

Creative direction

Use a modern, uncluttered layout with large readable headlines and one clear focal point. The palette is inspired by the Foodics brand manual: violet (#440099), dark grey (#363434) and white, with light neutral accents. Use clean sans-serif typography. The layouts use abstract operational illustrations, not a recreated Foodics interface or an unofficial logo. The word “foodics” is presented as plain text identification, not as a recreated official mark.

Accuracy & independence

Feature descriptions are based on Foodics’ official website and POS page. Product availability and suitability may vary by setup. This is an independent academic concept and is not affiliated with or endorsed by Foodics.

Sources: foodics.com and foodics.com/point-of-sale-restaurant-management-system/; brand guidance from Foodics Brand Manual 2.1/2.2 (linked in Sources.md).